

Johnny Otto

Select Works 2017-2026

"Grand. Vibrant. Aggressive. Powerful." - Art Reveal Magazine

"I see a postmodern man shaking off his false identities and dancing naked in front of the primordial fire." - Amber Christianson, Artist

"Bright, brash and bold!" - Shana Nys Dambrot, LAWEEKLY

www.ottophobia.com

@ottophobia

My work is greatly influenced by my first trip to The Detroit Institute of Arts when I was about 10 years old. My dad took me to the to see all the amazing art and I was blown away and mesmerized by their African Art Collection. They had rooms filled with African Masks and Wood Sculptures that were truly astounding. I had never seen anything like them before and they were so powerful that they left an immeasurable impression on me and drove me to want to paint and try to recreate their spirit in a modern context.

- Johnny Otto, Excerpt from Artist's Statement

Otto's work spans more than 35 years and includes shows with David Hockney (Divine Design Fundraiser Auction), 01 Gallery, Headquarters, Jeff Hamilton's Street Art Fair, Compound Contemporary, Radiant Space, Ministry Gallery, Art Squat, Project Angel Food Auction, Novian/Miller Space and others.

His visionary work has been featured in numerous publications including Art Reveal Magazine, Artillery, LAWeekly, VoyageLA, Splash, Bold Journey, Canvas Rebel, and Left Bank Magazine,

OTTO VS BASQUIAT FIGHT OF THE CENTURY

by Charlie Anison

Jean-Michel Basquiat once said that he wanted to make paintings that looked as if they were made by a child, in a sense trying to recapture the innocence and purity of thought in ones youth. In that way, Johnny Otto's primal brush strokes and bold use of color, are very similar. Both Artists used their art to invoke a feeling of freedom of expression, often called 'Neo-Expressionism' or 'Art Brut', a type of painting which French artist Jean Dubuffet described as naïve art, made outside the academic tradition of fine art.

Throughout his short, yet brilliant career, Basquiat astutely incorporated elements of black culture into his work, including tributes to Jazz Music icons, Policemen and Boxers. While Otto's paintings are also inspired by strong cultural forces, it was several trips to the Detroit Institute of Arts to see their overwhelming collection of African Art that really had a profound impact on his work. He was only 10 years old at the time and not even thinking about being an Artist. It wasn't until he entered University that his art began to emerge. Otto's father had previously shown him work in books by Masters such as Picasso, Dalí, Rembrandt, Degas and Van Gogh, but Otto had never seen African Art at all until that point. The wooden masks and sculptures had a profound impact on him that would slowly show itself over the span of several decades of painting.

Basquiat, 'Untitled', 1982

Art Reveal

Otto, 'Laurelwood in Fall', 2018

Otto is not trying to be the next Basquiat and tries to avoid discussions on the matter altogether, insisting that his interest is to fight Basquiat's imposing legacy and to create an aesthetic identity and painterly legacy entirely and unapologetically his own. Side by side, each Artist work is immediately distinguishable. The comparisons that are made are more abstract and intangible. It is the immediacy and energy of each Artist's work that are aligned in some manner. They share a genre of art, the same way bands fall into similar genres, but do not necessarily sound exactly alike and each have their own style and nuances, which separate them.

Otto, 'Za Videni', 2018

Keith Haring is another Artist that collectors mention in the same breath as Otto's, and, admittedly, Haring did influence at least one of Otto's pieces directly. In 1986, when Otto was just starting off as an Artist and having small shows in his hometown of Windsor, Ontario, Canada, Haring created a large painting depicting a hydra-like figure, whose head of tentacles morphs into individual bodies. Otto had not seen the piece and knew nothing of it, until in 2018 he saw a black & white print of it on Guy Hepner's website. Seeing it only once is all that it took for Otto to be inspired to create an homage to the original. Otto's painting took only a few days to make, but is just as jaw-dropping as Harings. Instead of tentacles with bodies, Otto's painting has eyes and is called 'Za Videni' (Green), which translates to 'For Vision'.

Otto's brilliance is, in an authentic way, mimicking these two great Artists' passion without copying them outright. It is a delight to see the manner in which Otto reinvigorates the same attitudes that Basquiat and Haring embodied, while at the same time reinventing their grammar.

Art Reveal

"It is a delight to see the manner in which Otto reinvigorates the same attitudes that Basquiat and Haring embodied, while at the same time reinventing their grammar." - Charlie Anison, Art Reveal Magazine

Otto, 'Za Videni', 2018

Art Reveal

While many Artists are capable of duplicating another Artist's work, it is a difficult undertaking to manifest their spirit and passion while adhering to a style that is new and fresh. As Picasso would say, 'good artists copy, great artists steal.' For even he was an adherent of the great artists that came before him and a keen disciple of his contemporaries. Like Haring, Otto has chosen chalk as his medium to carve his path across Los Angeles. Sidewalks and empty walls are quickly filled with his line art. He moves fast, mostly at night. "It's a fast world", Haring has said, and Otto's manner of painting reflects that belief. He usually creates his street art in just a few minutes. Mostly so that he won't get caught, but also because creating art with great urgency allows the energy of the moment to be leap out, whereas art that is more deliberate and time consuming to make, seems to lack that same energy.

In the summer of 2017 it was a trip to The Broad Museum in Los Angeles that pushed Otto's work even further toward his expressionistic inclinations. It was there that, for the first time, he saw a Haring and a Basquiat up close and personal and in the same room. Until that point, Otto had only see photos on-line, in documentaries or in books. While studying one of the Basquiat's, Otto realized that it was quite dirty around the edges, as if it had been in someone's basement or neglected for decades. He also noticed that there was a piece of gum under the paint and a shoe print, presumably Basquiat's own. The use of large amounts of paint, and the vibrancy of the colors, left a large impact on Otto and his attitude towards painting. Up until that point, he had been extremely careful and reserved with his pieces, not allowing them to be too messy or wild. That all changed.

In Basquiat's Untitled piece (above), we find the 'messy' use of paint, the vibrant colors, the urgent lines, the use of space to be similar to Otto's painting 'Fire Tribe', but, as stated previously, not a copy or an attempt to plagiarize in any way. There are a similarities in technique and passion, but the results are vastly individual, and it is those parallels in approach to Expressionism that create harmony between these two great Artist's work, even though created decades and lifetimes apart.

Otto, 'Za Videni', 2018

Otto, 'Za Videni', 2018

johnnyotto.com/art

Art Reveal

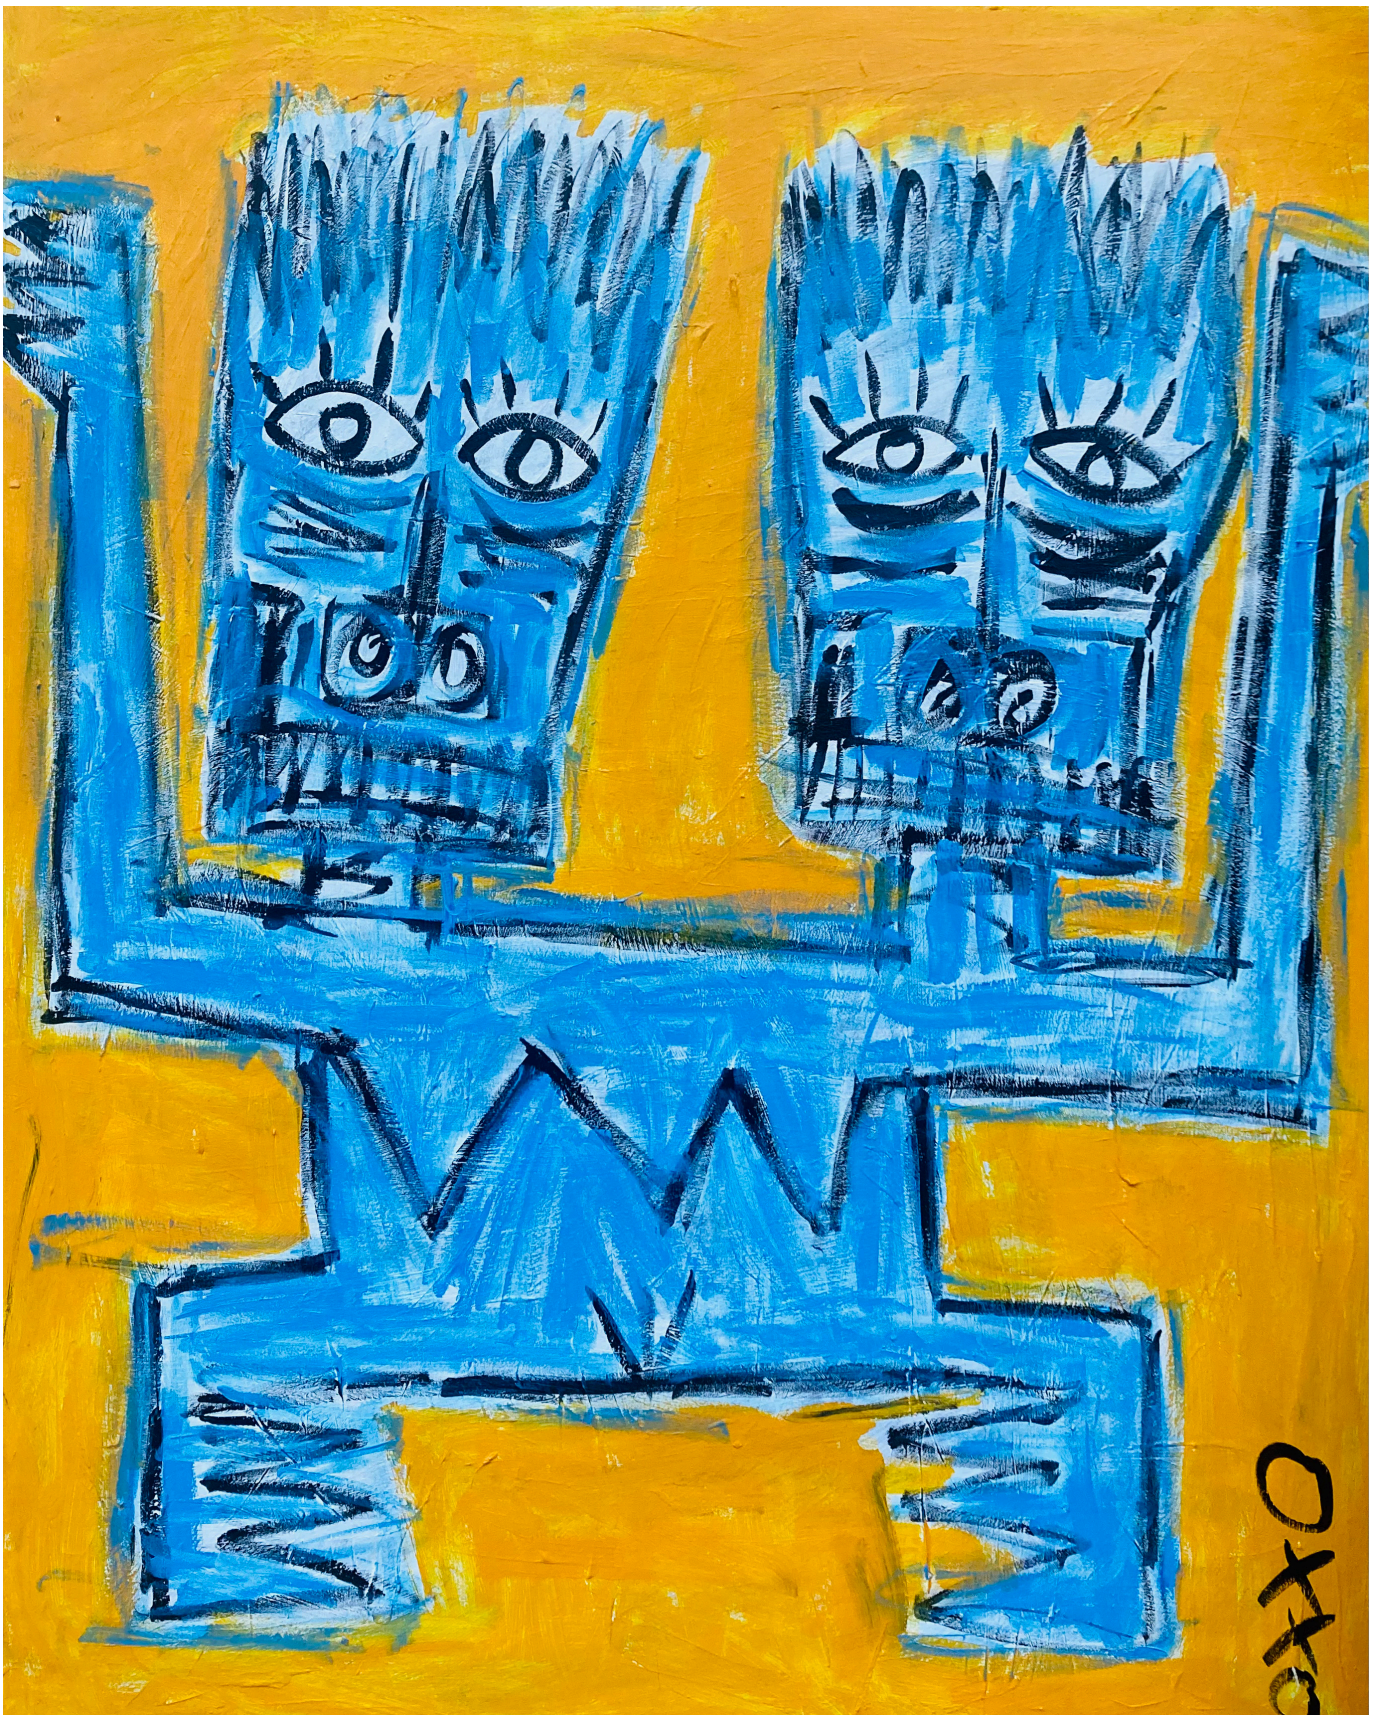

Artists that Johnny Otto has shown with include....

OG Able, Adam Stone, Aloy, Amy Smith, Atlas, Axis, BG183, Billy Morrison, BIO, Bobby Doran, Mister Cartoon, CES, Carly Ealey, Charlie Paige, Chloe Trujillo, Corie Mattie, Curtis Nunez, Chris Konecki, Dr.Dax, Dave Navarro, David Hockney, Dave Shutter, Dave Tour, Defer, Estevan Oriol, Evel, Gary Young, Gabor, Gregory Siff, Heaven, Kevin Nealon, Kick, Kwest, Lefty, Louie Perez, Nicer, Norton Wisdom, Peter Tunney, Prime, Relic, Risk, Sever, Sel Dog, Sonny Boy, Svetlana Talabolina, Tazroc, Taz, Tommy Hollenstein, Toons One!, Travis Walker, Tristan Eaton, Sharky, Shepard Fairey, Vision, Vyal, Wane Cod, Plastic Jesus, WRDSMTH, Mark Estes.

Johnny Otto
Augur
48"x60"
acrylic on canvas
2021

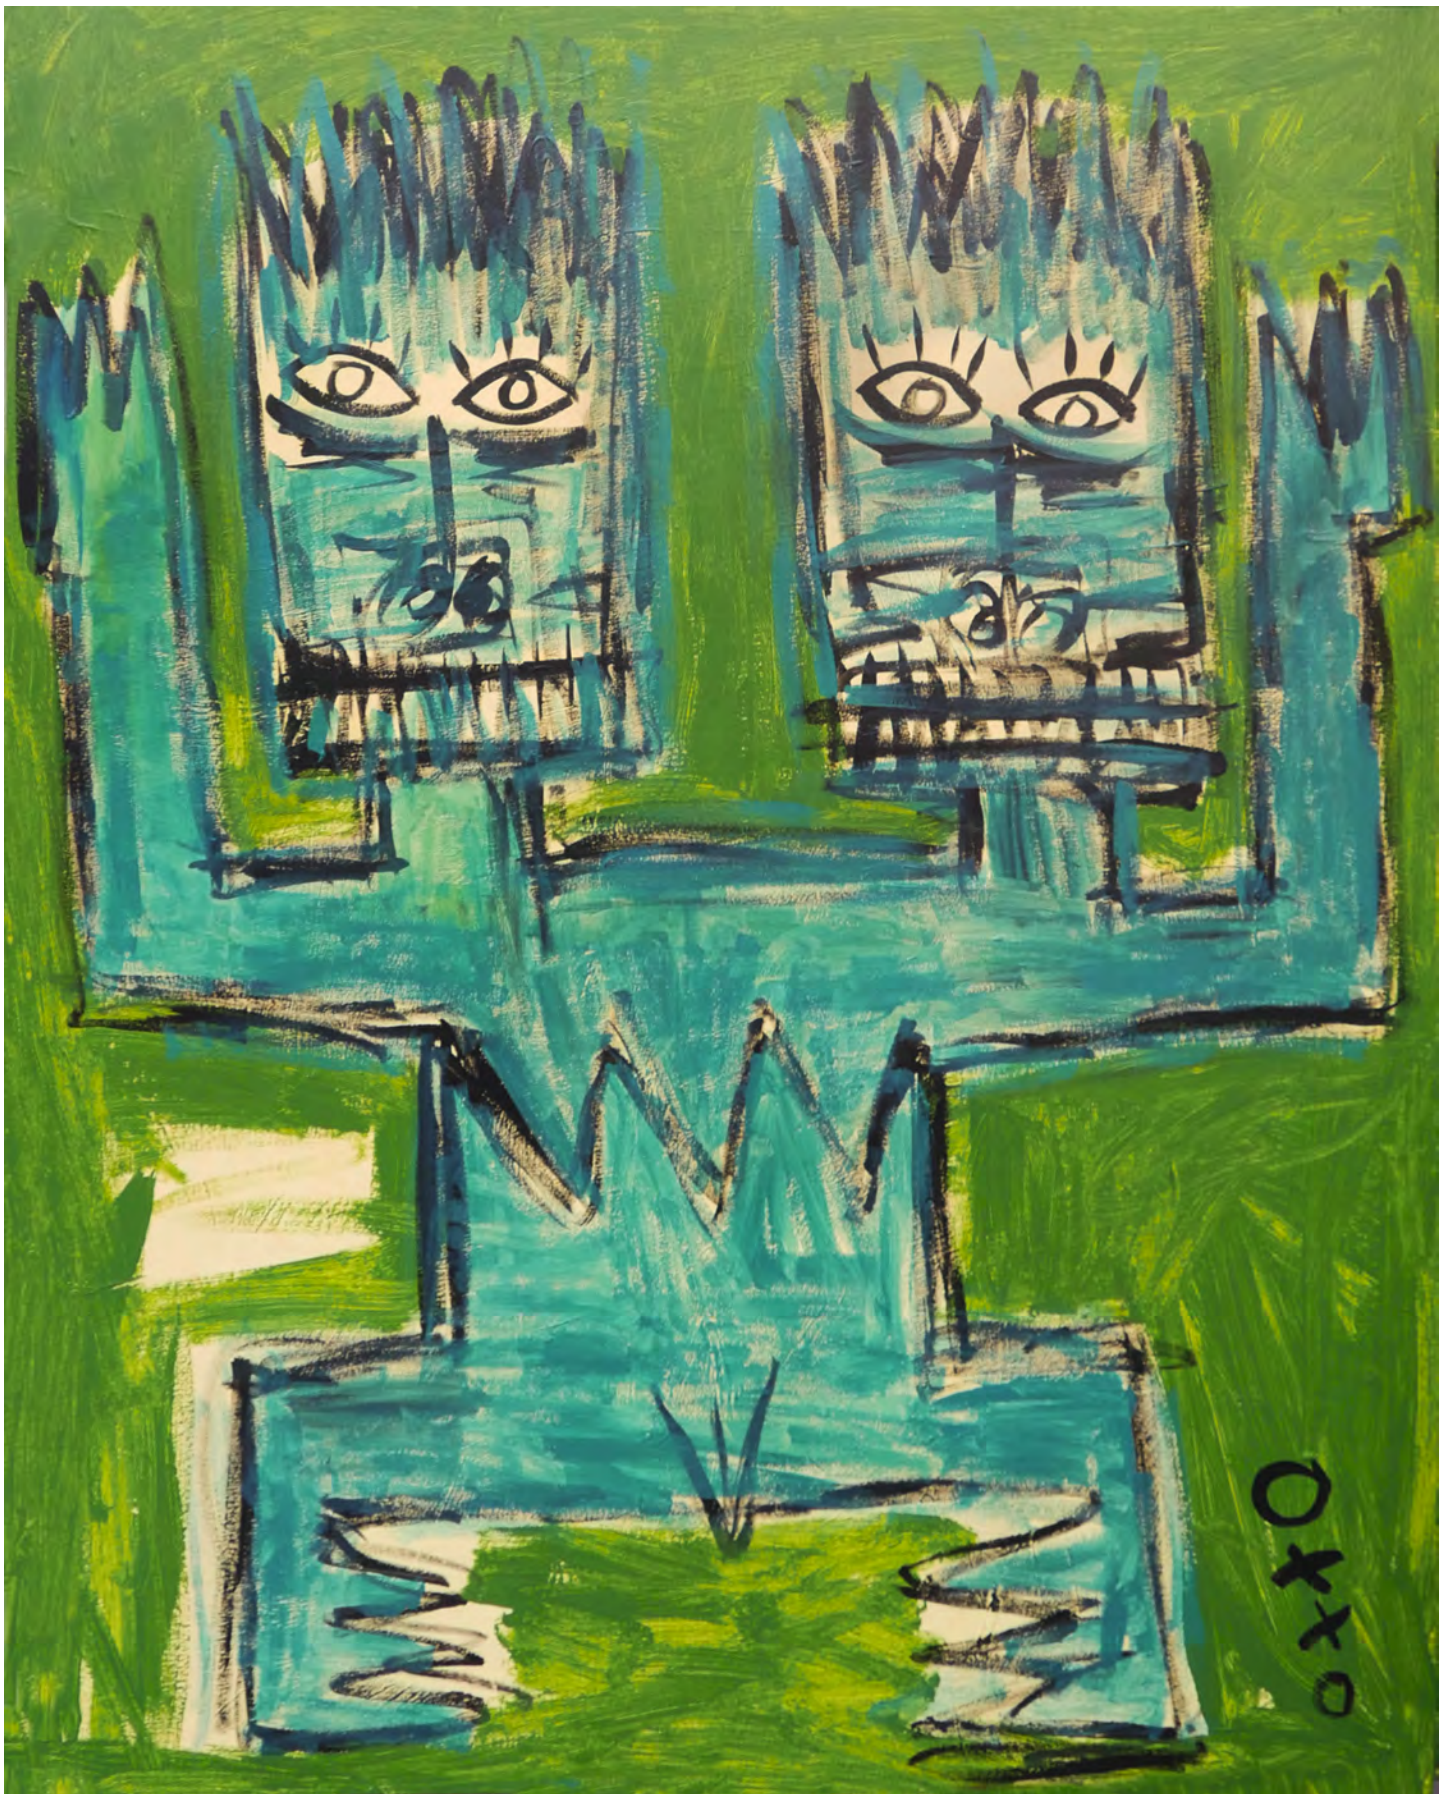

Johnny Otto
Blue Dream
48"x60" acrylic on canvas 2021

Johnny Otto
Dance of Spirits
48"x60"
acrylic on canvas
2021

Johnny Otto
La Masque Jaune
48"x60"
acrylic on canvas
2021

Johnny Otto
Spirits of Elysium
48"x60"
acrylic on canvas
2021

Johnny Otto
Blood Tribe
48"x60"
acrylic on canvas
2021

Johnny Otto
la Chance de Voir
48"x60"
acrylic on canvas
2018

Buy Art

SAVE

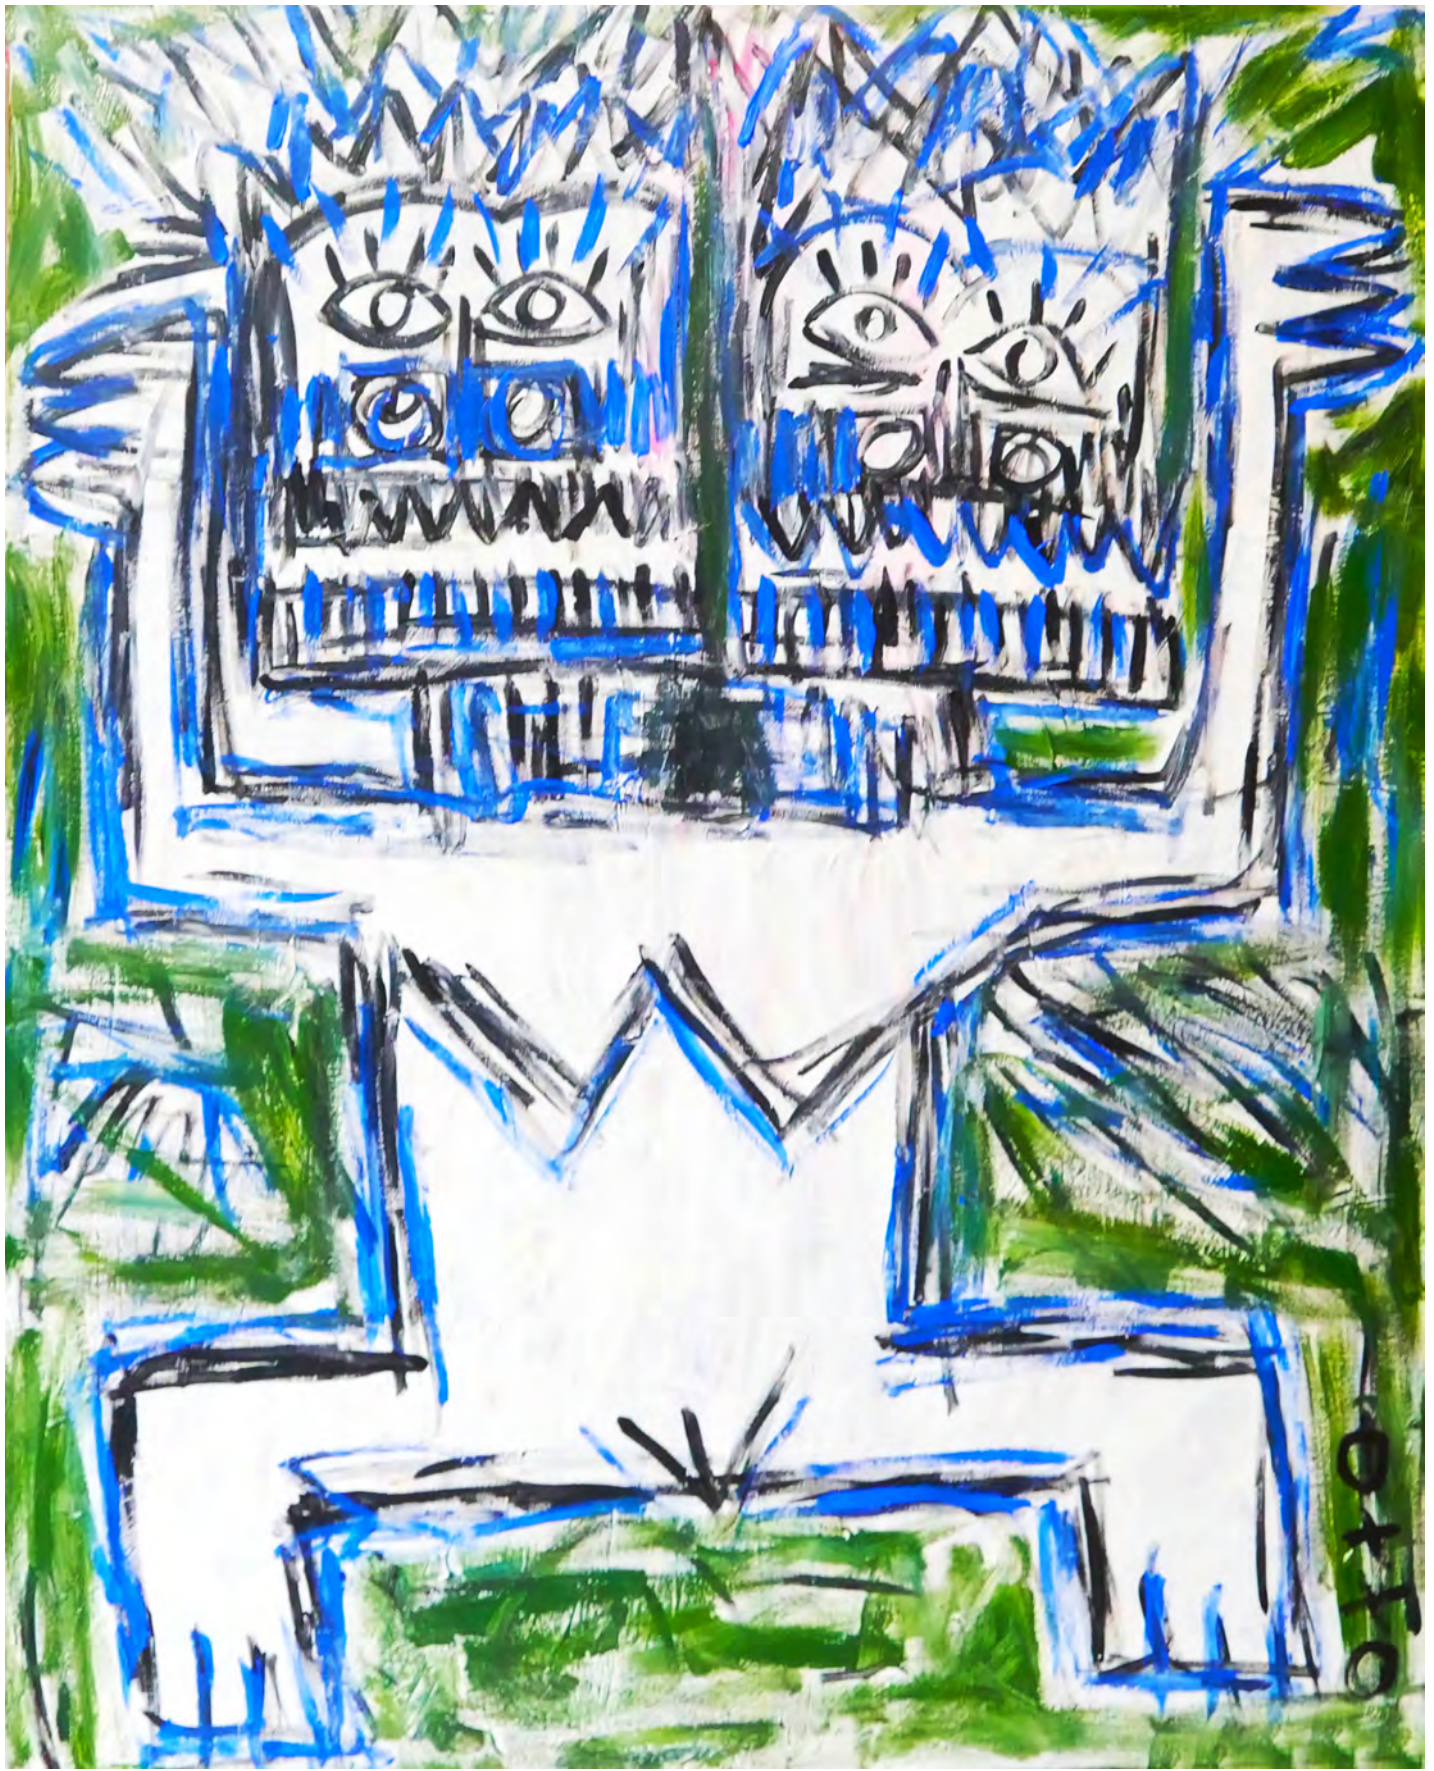

A

CRAZY

PERSON

-Otto

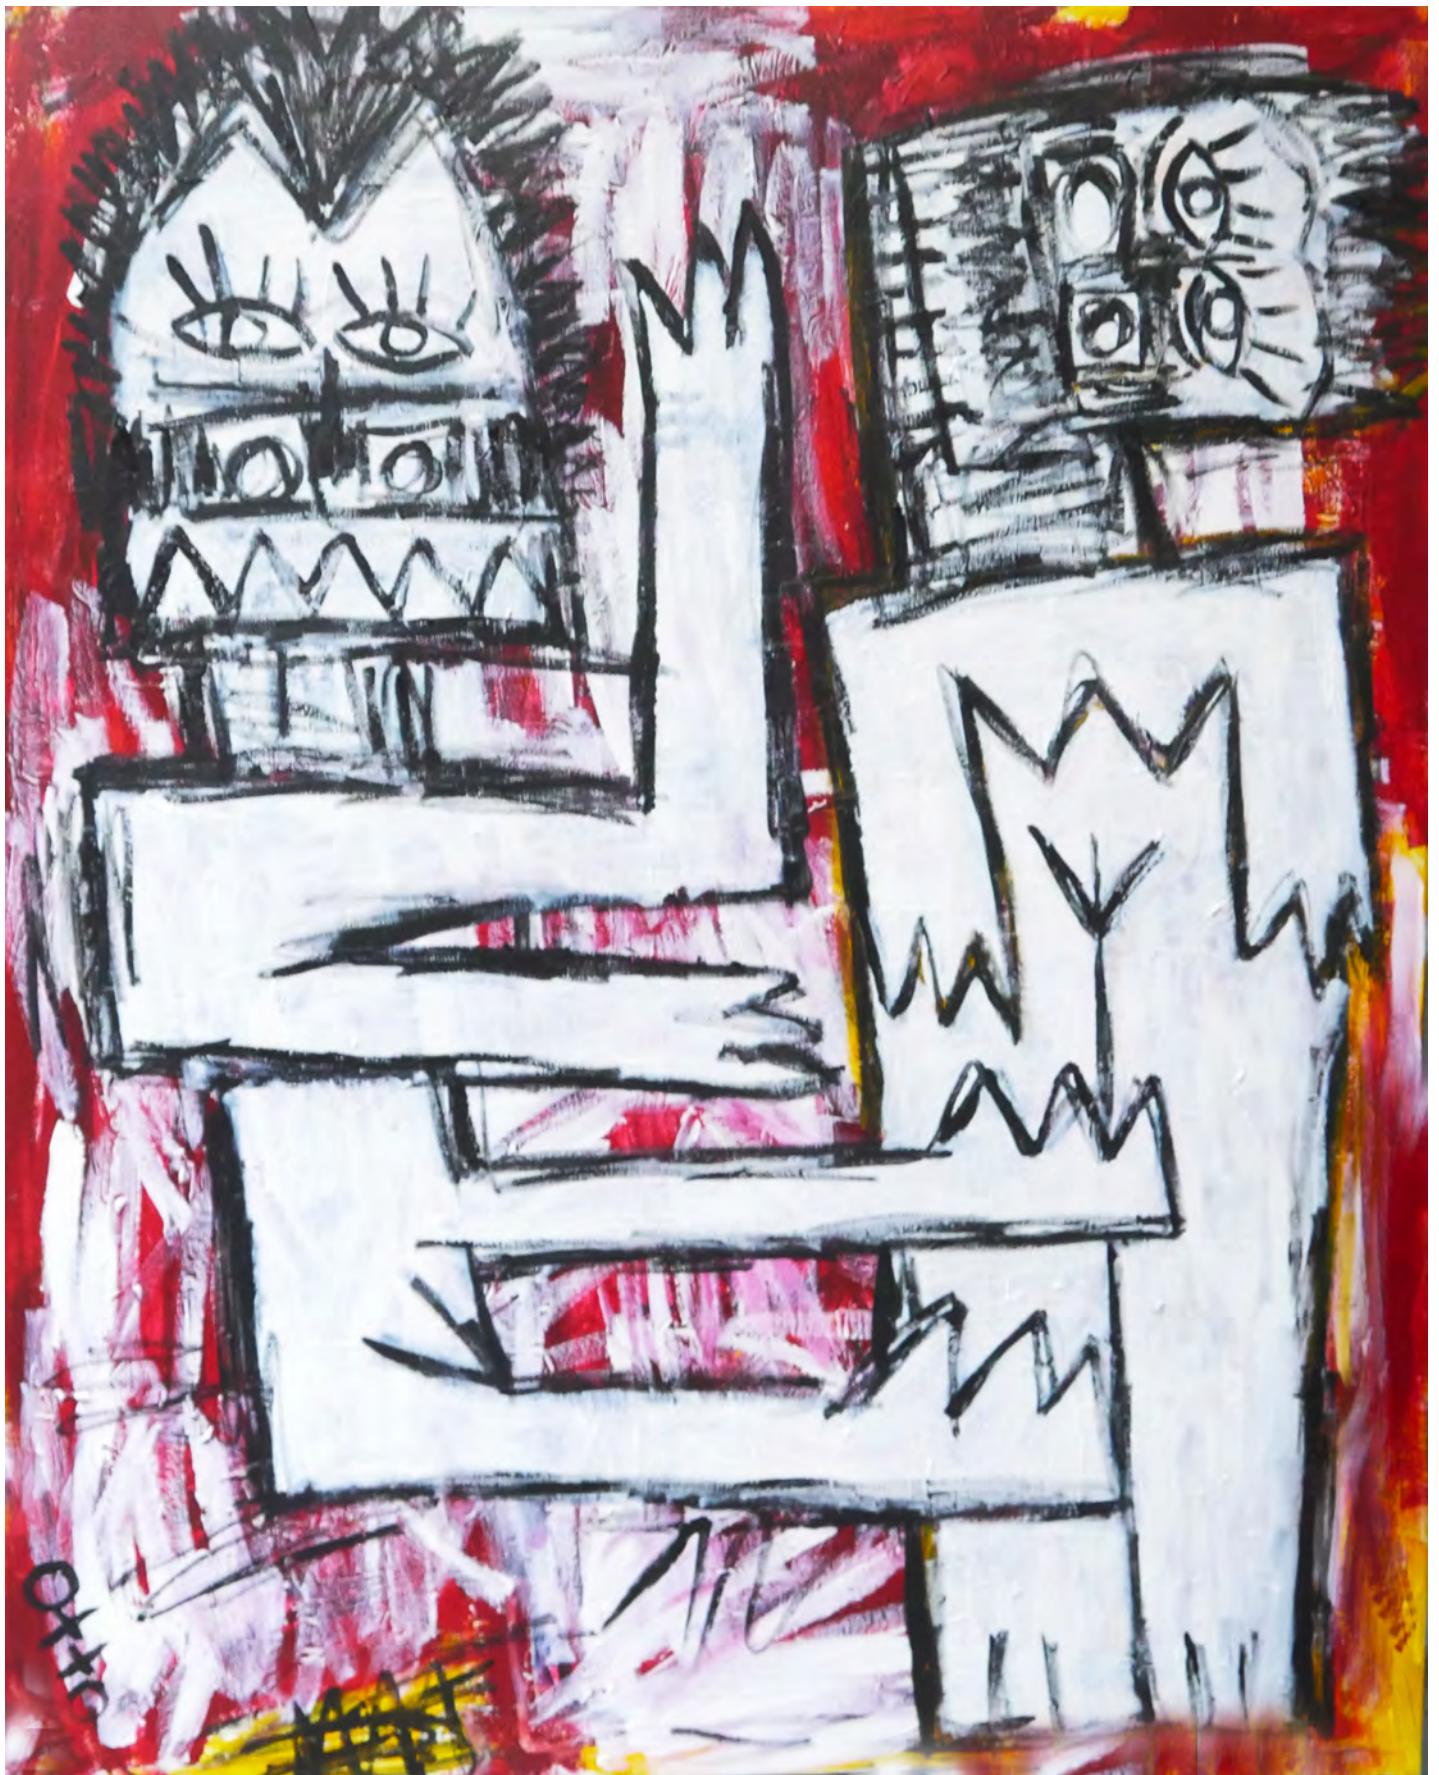

Johnny Otto
La Etrangete de L'ame
48" x 60"
acrylic on canvas
2017

Johnny Otto
Esprit Du Primitif
48" x 60"
acrylic on canvas
2018

Johnny Otto
Twins of the Flame
48" x 60"
acrylic on canvas
2020

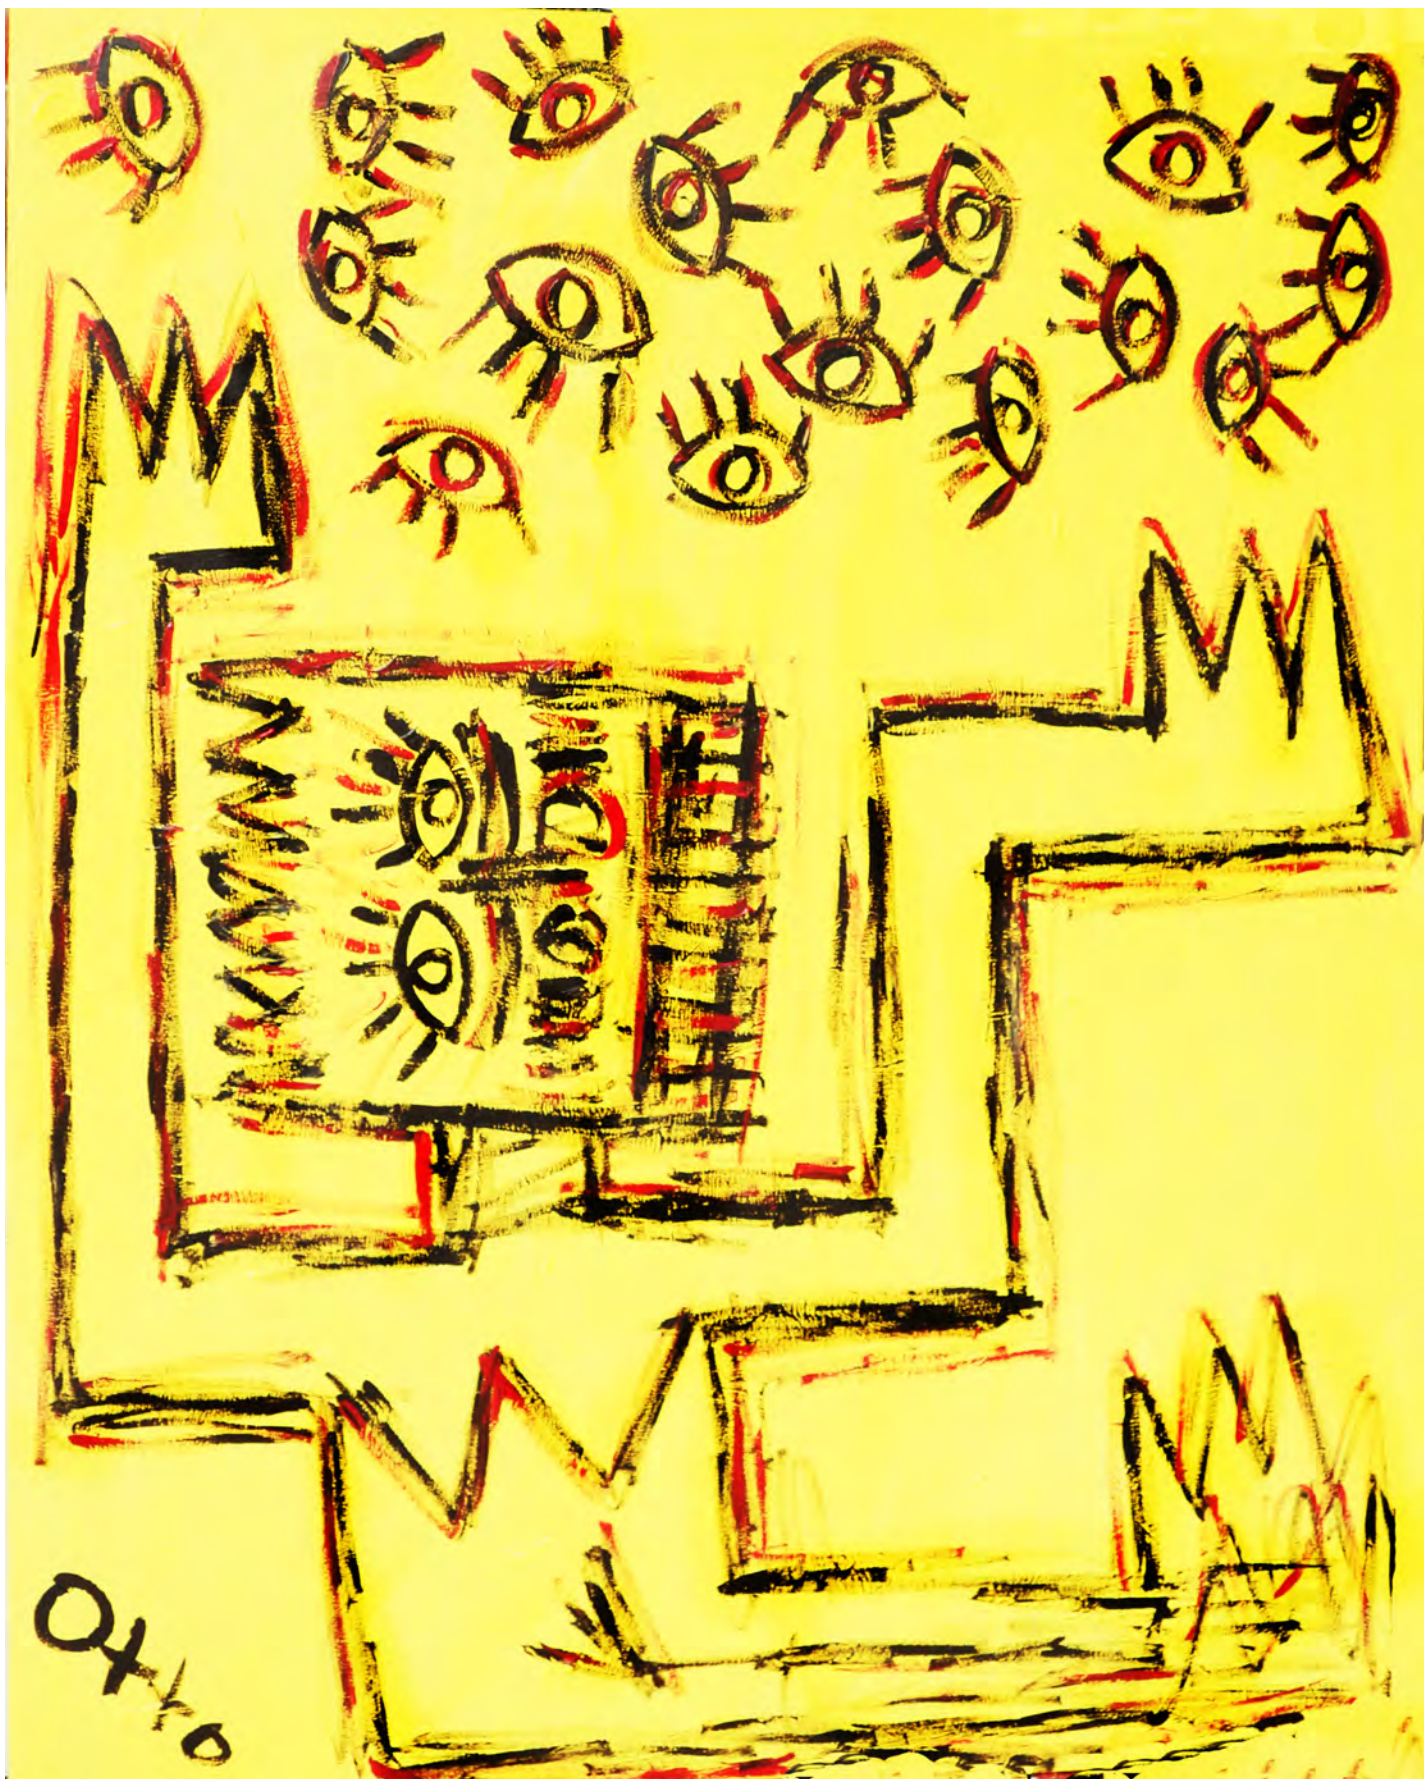

Johnny Otto
Fire Around Us
48" x 60"
acrylic on canvas
2017

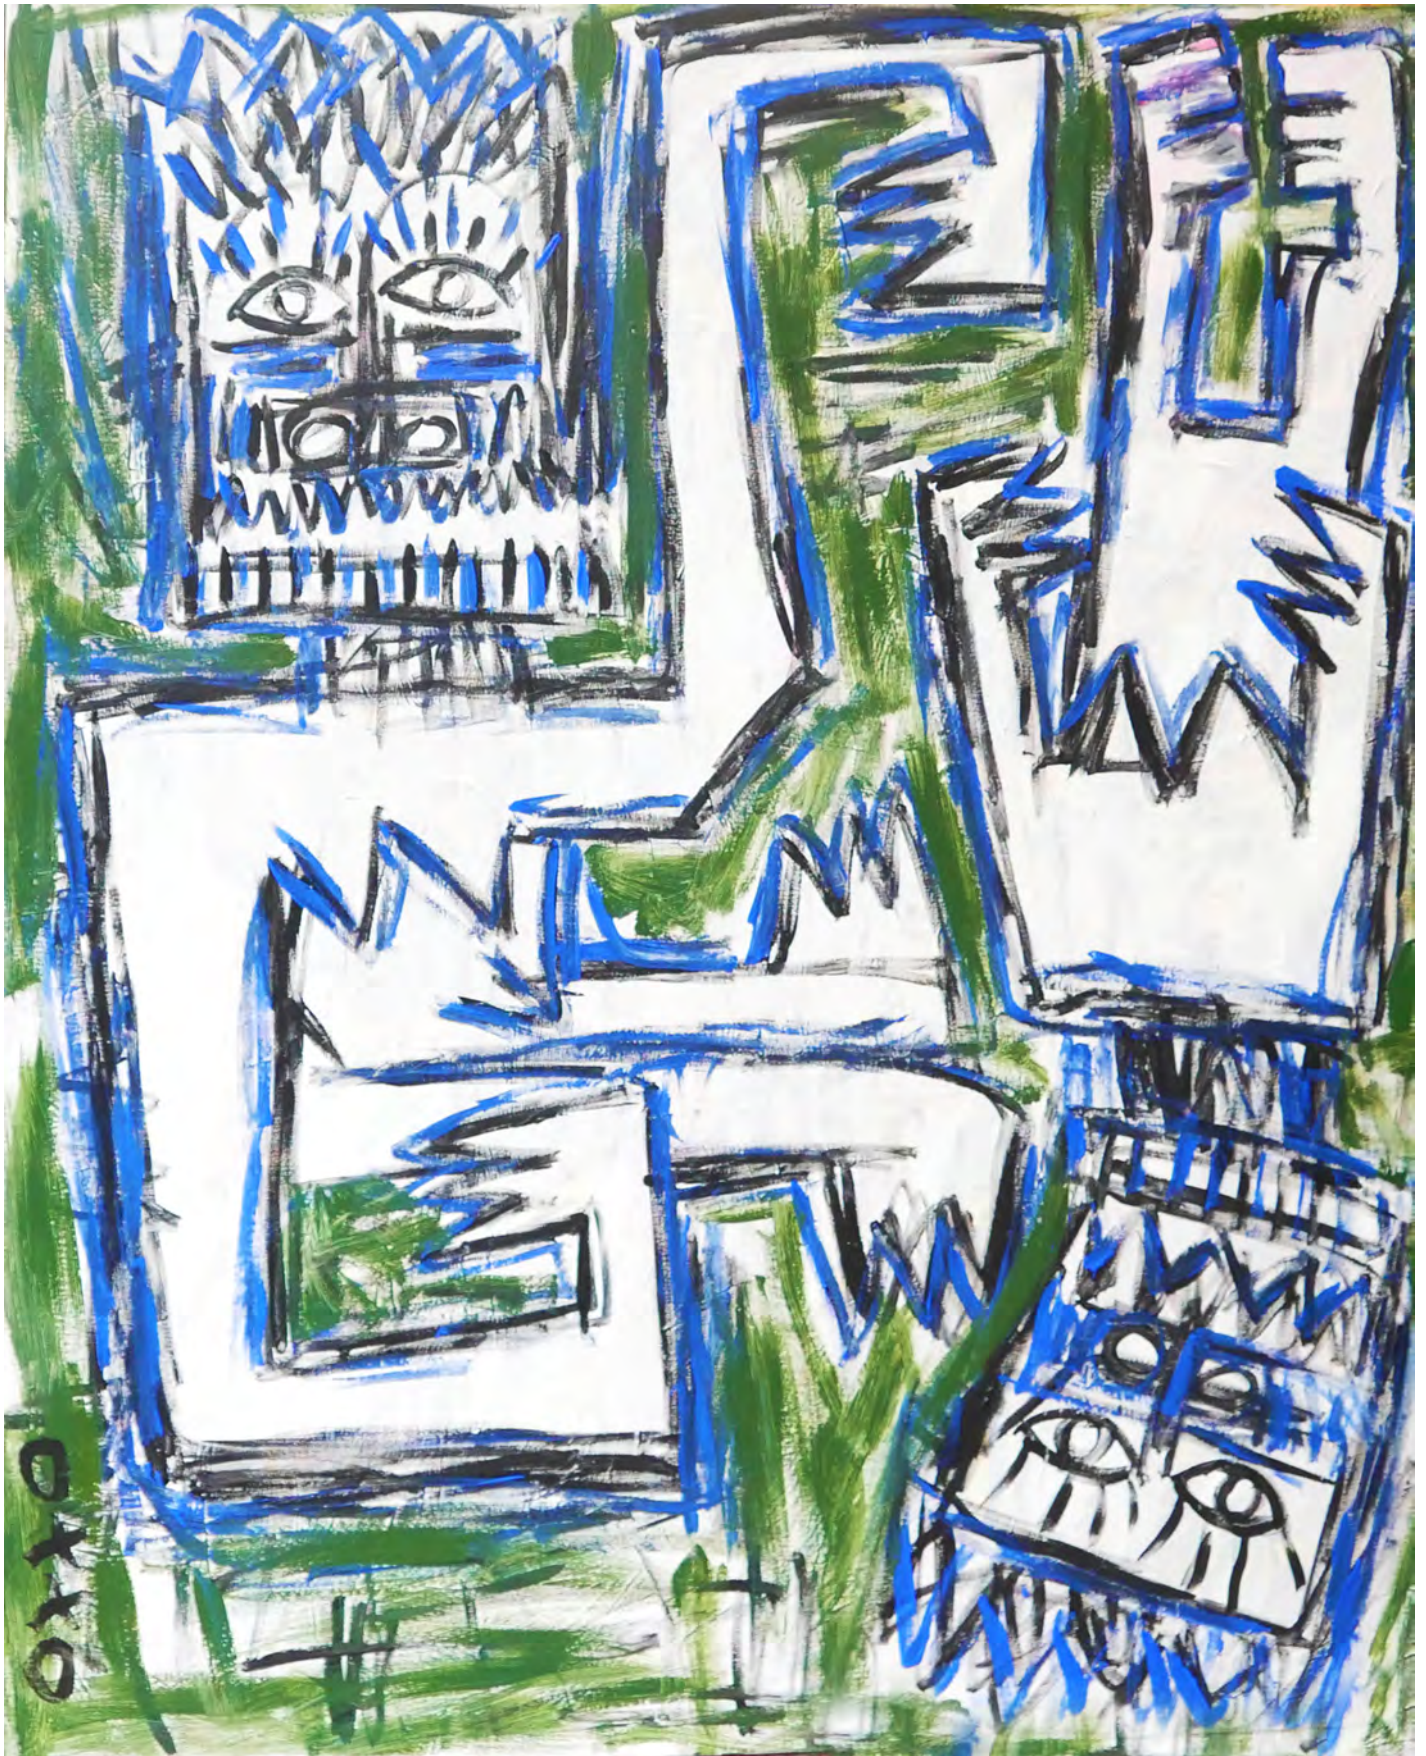

Johnny Otto
Child of Grace
48" x 60"
acrylic on canvas
2017

Johnny Otto
A Verite Voit
48" x 60"
acrylic on canvas
2018

Johnny Otto
Earthly Delights
48" x 60"
acrylic on canvas
2017

Johnny Otto
Blue Green Twins
48" x 60"
acrylic on canvas
2017

Johnny Otto
Dance of the Spirit #2
48" x 60"
acrylic on canvas
2018

Johnny Otto
Za Videni
48" x 60"
acrylic on canvas
2018

213-422-4154
www.ottophobia.com
@ottophobia
ottophobia@gmail.com